HEROES OF

Addresses on the Birthday of General Lee.

THE WONDER OF THE WORLD

tion that the charge made by the Federal Government that these men were more deeply dyed an "traitors" than any others, because of their having owed a higher duty to the Government for their education, was, and is, utterly false and peculiarly unjust. These men were not politicians; far from it. They loved the flag under which they had salled, and whose honor they would have defended with the last drop of their blood if assailed by a foreign foe. They were, with their families, entirely dependent upon their salaries. But the war cloud came; it burst upon their beloved native Southland. They deemed that their highest obligation was to their native States, on whose soil they were born, and from which they were appointed. They, impelied by a sense of duty, resigned and tendered their struggle in self-denfence and for independence.

IGNOMINOUSLY DISMISSED.

camp. Confederate Veteraus, or the Birthady of General Robert E. Lee, by Captain W. C. Whittle, Former Executive Officer of the Shananadonh.

(Richmond Dispatch, 19th.)

The following is the address of Captain W. C. Whittle, formerly executive officer, Confederate States cruiser Shenandonh, delivered before Picker, Bachanan Camp, at Norfolk, Va., on General R. E. Lee's Birthady, January 19th, 1899.

General R. E. Lee's Birthady, January 19th, 1899.

TATIONAL WITH PARTY OF THE PART

OUR VENERATED TOWNSMAN.

See, again, the gallant Captain (General) R. L. Page, our venerated townsman, in command of Fort Morgan at Mobile, repelling and holding in check Farragau's powerful fleet and the United States army with comparatively a handful of men, and after a long siege only surrendering a dismantled and burned out fort.

See the dashing Maffit sweeping the ocean on the Florida, and again running the blockade scores of times in the government blockade-runners with much-needed supplies. See the brave, calm Wilkinson, Fry, Gayle and others, similarly and successfully operating. See the wise, clear-headed Bulloch, to whose fine executive and business ability and resource was due the building and getting to sea, while surrounded by sples and difficulties, the Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Shenandoah, Stonewall, Rappahannock, etc.

AT DREWRYS BLUFF.

AT DREWRY'S BLUFF.

THEIR CAUSE LIVES.

The patriotism, self-abnegation, valor, and services of these men may be better appreciated from the enemy's standpoint, by the dread in which they were held and the ignominy with which they were held and the ignominy with which they were treated by the enemy as veltors, for they were called trailors and pirates, and not until about thirty years after the war was closed, when a cloud of possible war with England over the Venezuela bostudary arcse, were they fully rehabilitated as citizens, enabling them to hold freely and fully equal government positions by entire removal of disabilities. This was a measure only taken when there seemed to be a chance of a need of their services.

Brave, true and loyal they were during the war, and since, the survivors manfully struggling for their honest support, their noble qualities of hend and heart have shone out with even more magnificent glory. Apparent fall, we desired. THEIR CAUSE LIVES,
